

EdAdvance Social, Emotional, & Mental Health Professional Learning SERIES

November 29th 8:30 am to 3:30 pm

Introducing our first workshop designed specifically for districts and school leaders that is focused on enhancing social emotional learning and the mental health of all school community members.

First Offering: Restorative Practices/School Climate

Facilitated by: JoAnn Freiberg, Ph.D, and Pat Ciccone, School Climate Consultants

We are pleased to offer a one-day highly interactive restorative practices training for building-based teams to assist in improving school climate and culture by building high-quality constructive relationships, holding students accountable for challenging behaviors, and ensuring the student has a role in repairing relationships.

This restorative practices training provides school leaders and team members with the skills to:

- Embrace restorative practices as a way of thinking, being and operating your school on a day-to-day basis.
- Map pathways to achieving and sustaining a positive school culture with strategies that shift the focus from punitive consequences to restorative approaches.
- Establishes systems to form, transform, repair, and support strong relationships among all school community members.
- Conduct circles and conferences in both preventive and intervention contexts.

Why You Should Attend

This training helps educators understand why the new CT legislation (P.A. 23-167) encourages schools/districts to work restoratively as an appropriate and positive direction toward improving opportunities for student success academically and behaviorally.
